1. John Brown, Assistant Chief Fire Officer of the Technical and Operational Support Department, West Midlands Fire and Rescue Service

He was instrumental in the organisation and pre-planning of major events, such as International Birmingham Super Prix and inter-agency liaison concerned with Major Emergency Planning and Procedures, County Contingency Plans and other associated matters. As the Divisional Officer in the newly formed Community Relations Department he implemented groundbreaking initiatives in areas of fire safety and raising the communities' awareness about the dangers from fire. He introduced education robots, provided free smoke alarms, managed high profile media campaigns and engaged with schools as part of the national curriculum. He introduced fire safety publicity material which was used in the successful campaign on buses and billboards to raise the profile of fire safety within the community. He was instrumental in the bid to procure both smoke alarms and ‘Minicom’ telephone equipment for people with hearing impairment in the Tipton area, which enabled links to be forged with deaf community. As the Brigade’s Investigating Officer he was involved with the initial Regional work relating to the provision of decontamination and Incident Response Units and for establishing inter-agency protocols with Police and other agencies. He has also been the Chairman of Walsall Community Safety Partnership and is currently the Chairman of the Fire Services Appliances Consortium and the Regional Secretary Association of Principle Fire Officers. Recently, he has been the Senior Officer responsible for the new Fire Service HQ Relocation Project, involving the sale, acquisition of new site and working with the Project Manager and Board in overseeing the design and build project for the new Fire Service Head Quarters.

2. Neil Gibbins, Deputy Chief Fire Officer, Devon and Somerset Fire and Rescue Service

For the past 12 years he has been a dedicated and effective champion for Fire Safety (Protection) within the Fire and Rescue Service. He has served on the National Fire Safety Committee for the Chief Fire Officers Association for the past five years and for most of that time he has chaired the Fire Safety Order Working Group. It is estimated that the activities of this Group have saved the Fire and Rescue Service the equivalent of over £1 million in Officer time. This was done through the preparation and circulation of draft policies and procedures for the implementation of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. He has been a great ambassador for fire safety and has spoken to groups such as the Business and Community Safety Forum which, in turn, advises the Minister, and established good working relationships with commercial fire safety bodies in the fields of retail and hotels. He has devoted a great deal of time and energy to re-establishing an annual conference for Senior Fire Safety Officers and without his enthusiasm those working in fire safety would face greater challenges.

3. Sian Griffiths, Station Manager, London Fire Brigade

She has been a fire-fighter and operational fire officer for 24 years during which time she has continuously campaigned, positively for issues relating to equality and diversity in the London Fire Brigade (LFB) and the national Fire and Rescue Service. She was one of the founder members of the Fire Brigade’s Union Women’s Action Committee in London in 1989 and has worked tirelessly, often in her personal time, to improve the issues relating to operational women including maternity guidance, uniform, accommodation, dignity and respect and equality and diversity matters. As a direct result of her work women fire-fighters across the LFB and the UK now have vastly improved conditions of service and working environments. Whilst working in the central service delivery team in 2008 she led an audit of all the fire station accommodation to ensure it was suitable for the diverse workforce LFB employs and to improve this to help with recruiting more representatives from diverse backgrounds. She has been a driving force in developing international links with overseas women's networking organisations, particularly in the USA. She has been instrumental in taking an annual delegation of women firefighters to America in order for them to network and share experiences which they are then able to bring back and apply in their daily roles. Recognised as an expert in equality and diversity issues, she has been a keynote speaker addressing conferences, both home and abroad, where she has talked about her experiences as a female fire-fighter. Her drive and enthusiasm have been key in improving the retention of female firefighters not just within London but also at a national level. She has pioneered the support of women internationally, raising women's health issues in particular in war torn countries such as Iraq and Iran.

4. Mark Yates, Deputy Chief Fire Officer, Hertfordshire Fire and Rescue Service

His service started in Cornwall in 1984 where he rose to the level of Assistant Chief Fire Officer, he worked mainly in operations, community safety and statutory fire safety with responsibility for training as a District Manager. He founded five cadet schemes which are still in existence and provide interactive programmes of engagement for young people aged 8-16. He was the founder of the Chief Fire Officers Association South West region 'Youth Forum' which brought together all the Fire Services in the South West to advance engagement with young people and share best practice. He was one of the first principal officers to put in place plans to make the Fire Service in Cornwall an employer of choice for women and the BME communities. He employed the first equality adviser for Cornwall Fire Brigade and led on equality issues. He joined Hertfordshire Fire and Rescue Service (FRS) as Deputy Chief Fire Officer in April 2005. He helped lead Hertfordshire FRS through challenging times. He was Silver Commander at the Buncefield fire, one of the largest fires of its kind in Europe and he undertook Gold Command duties when deputising for the Chief Fire Officer. His fire attack plan stood the test over three days of fire-fighting and brought the fire to an early and successful end. He has helped to lead Hertfordshire FRS through a period of industrial action resulting in strikes in 2006. These were the first Fire Service strikes to go ahead without military support. He was heavily involved in negotiations with the Fire Brigades Union throughout this period. He also led on the implementation of recommendations arising from the fire-fighter fatalities at Harrow Court and the A1(M) incidents.
